Tradition is the distinguishing of a school, a bond between separate years.

The grasp of tradition unites a school to common goals.
Spirit becomes an emotional fact,
not a mood, to create a history of group desires and causes.

This tradition evades us,
for we evade it.

Ours was a tradition thwarted by spiritless brick and concrete, newly erected to unite a vast community into a student body.

One school was called to prepare seniors for college and to teach spelling, to present calculus, civics, and kickball.
Masses of students and teachers poured into a conglomeration unsure of the image it was to obtain.

WORKING FOR PEACE

A new freedom for expression and styles
as well as influences from the varied community added experience
but lessened the effect of a struggling tradition.

After eight years,
tradition still yields to a smattering of ideas, goals, ages, backgrounds.
Just as the world emerges to a decade with a wealth of divergence, the school resists a brand.
It cannot be labeled or filed, for its people reflect the variance of the time.

'Guess Who's Coming to Dinner' clinches first place award for FHA Rushing to find new addresses and send invitations to the three hundred alumni of 1969 began the preparations for Homecoming. Parade chairman Terry Sue Tyrrell called a Wednesday night rehearsal for all floats. Parent Visitation Day enabled students to put the finishing touches on the floats during the day on Friday.

Homecoming offered money raising opportunities for clubs. For parents and students the Key Club operated a car wash where they cleaned sixty automobiles, while the Junior Class sold orange and blue balloons at the game. Sponsoring the weekend, the Pep Club profited three hundred dollars.

Rated on appearance, originality, and representation of the theme "Do You Remember?" the FHA's "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" captured first prize. The second and third prizes went to the Chorus' "Down the Field in Forty-eight" and the musical's publicity float for "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

Senior homerooms nominated Bonnie Farry, Kathy Garner, Peggy Hite, Beth Johnston, Carolyn Markow, Melinda Profitt, and Susan Smith as princesses. The class elected Susan Smith Queen.

The Pep Club committee with Dianne Foster as chairman decorated the gymnasium with vivid autumn scenes. The representative on the winning float, Bonni Thurman, acted as the queen's maid of honor at the Homecoming dance.

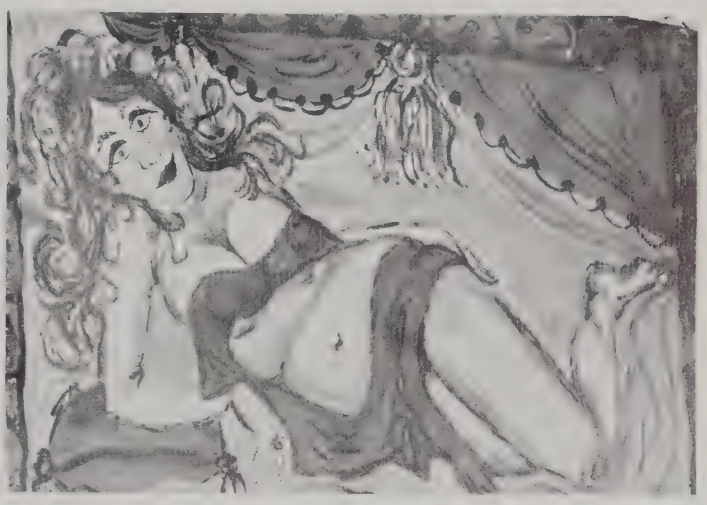
Following the coronation of Susan Smith as Homecoming queen, her father congratulates the family's second Senior Class princess.

The Tobins gather for a final family wrestle session before Father Flynn (David McClain) blesses the boys (Lewis Rogers and Richard Gittings), and Shamus (Dennis Tosh) lets his sons leave to seek their fortunes. In his newly-built cabin Johnny proposes to Molly with "I'll Never Say No." Denver's elite class meets at Mrs. McGlone's block party for the christening of a Rosewood Vidiamier piano, imported to civilize the city's gold tycoons.

Brandishing a gun, Molly forces the terrified passengers of Lifeboat 6 to row through the frigid mid-Atlantic. Draped in red satin, Josephine graces the wall of the Saddle Rock.



Molly Brown keeps lifeboat afloat, wins place in Denver high society

From Philadelphia's Shubert Theater and New York's Winter Garden, Meredith Willson's The Unsinkable Molly Brown played to three SRO audiences.

From her song and dance days at the Saddle Rock Saloon, where she fell in love with and married prospector Leadville Johnny Brown (Rick Petty), Molly Tobin (Debbi Blankenship) attempted to enter Denver's elite only to face society's rejection. Frustrated, Molly decided to learn the social graces in Europe. Charming the international set, she returned to Denver to be accepted by the "sacred thirty-six" only because of her newfound friends of royalty.

Molly returned to Europe while Johnny left her for the simple life of the Colorado Rockies. Soon Molly tired of her pseudo-existence and returned aboard the new S.S. Titanic. After the ship capsized, sheer guts kept her lifeboat "unsinkable" until help arrived. Acclaimed a heroine, Molly returned to Leadville and to Johnny Brown.

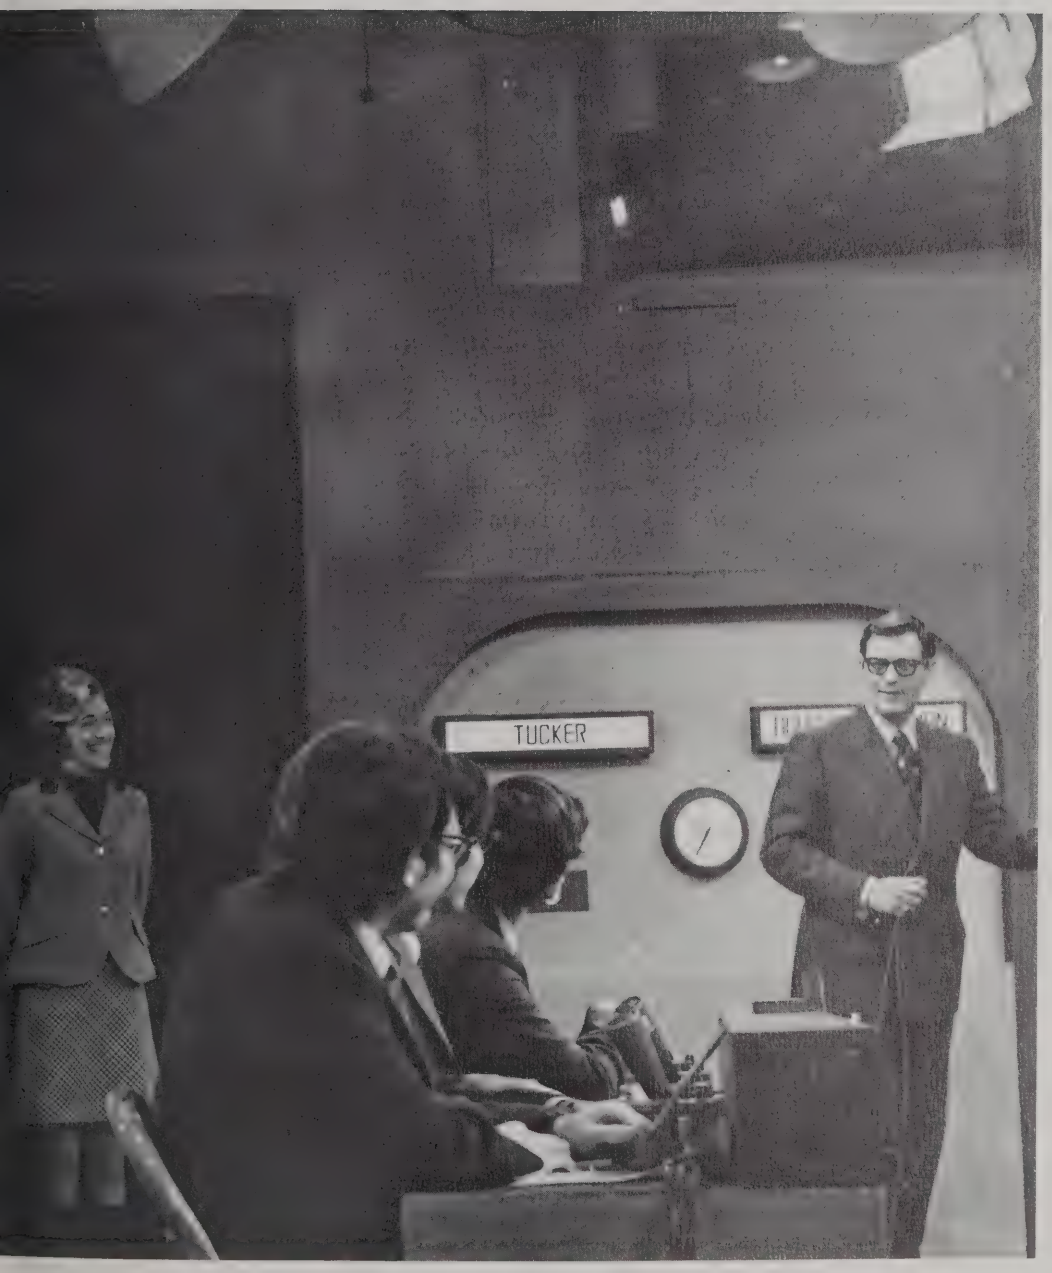
Dennis Tosh, Ken Lewis, Maribeth Brewster, Troy Lassiter, and Ricky Gulick gave assistance in supporting roles. Mr. Stamback enhanced the musical score with spirited renditions of "I Ain't Down Yet" and "Are You Sure?" Miss Jester directed dramatic scenes while Mrs. Greenwell choreographed the bawdy "Belly Up To The Bar, Boys." Mr. Caldwell executed set construction, and Mrs. Stratton and art classes designed and painted scenery. Mrs. Gordon created makeup effects and period costumes.

Junior David Singer wins WRNL—University of Richmond radio quiz

Transforming the gym into a Dogpatch farmyard with Margaret Simpson and Kenny Barnhill portraying Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner, the Junior Class sponsored the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. Couples dressed in patched blue denim shorts and overalls exchanged wedding vows in services performed by Marryin' Sam, portrayed by Mr. Morris. Curtain rod rings sprayed with gold paint served as wedding bands.

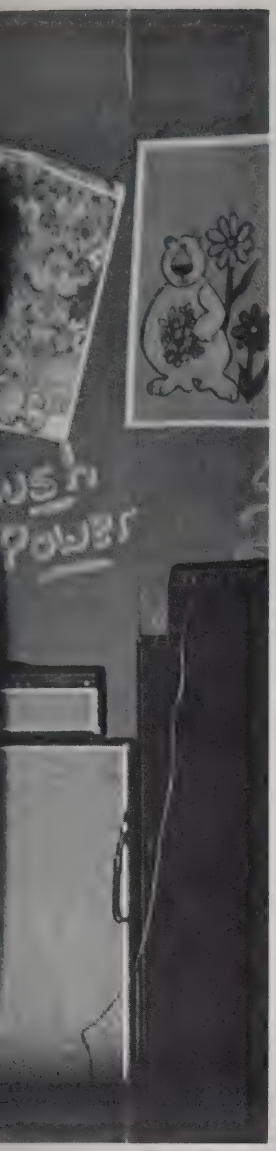
For the third year, the High School Bowl team reached the semifinals. Dennis Tosh, Joel Rubin, David Singer, and Paul Ackman defeated Henrico, Manchester, and Varina. Ann Itzkowitz won a first place in the forensic competition held at Virginia Commonwealth University and represented the district at the state meet at the University of Virginia.

David Singer competes in the second round, increasing his scholarship earnings to $2000.



A rejected scarecrow, once a background for Sadie Hawkins pictures, lies in the debris. Ann Itzkowitz prepares "If You Go Away" for Forensics girls' poetry reading division. Tucker and Douglas Freeman match wits in the close semifinal High School Bowl game.

Maudie Frickert (Mr. Bosher) hobbles to the Greenwich coffeehouse for some soul music. Imitating the style of the Supremes, the Soul Dancers sing, "Stop! In the Name of Love." Screaming teenie boppers twist to the rock music of Dick Clark's American Bandstand.



Grandpa McCoy calls Luke to the barn in a series of impersonations by Jim McAlister of celebrities on television's Ed Sullivan Show.

Moon Valley Nudist Camp recruits first Apollo astronaut Juan Herran

Reviewing the past decade, the Class of 1970 presented "The Best of the '60s." Set in a Greenwich Village coffeehouse, the Variety Show featured folk, country, and popular music from the period. Junior girls clad in long skirts, bobby socks, and saddle oxfords recreated "American Bandstand." Outside in the park, Maudie Frickert (Mr. Bosher) learned about the recent lunar landing and capture of America's first man on the moon (Juan Herran) by alien maidens. Highlighting the school's past musicals, the Senior Class presented sketches from Bye-Bye Birdie, Destry Rides Again, The Pajama Game, Funny Girl, and Molly Brown.

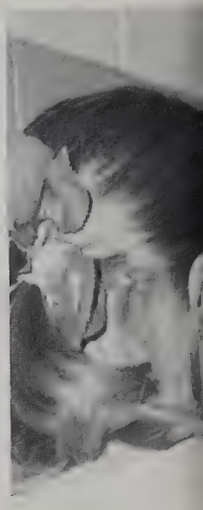
Peggy Hite wins second place in beauty pageant

Richmond radio and television announcers selected Peggy Hite first runner-up for Tuberculosis Christmas Queen. Peggy placed on the basis of her congeniality and her ability to serve as hostess for charity functions.

Rising seniors chosen by the faculty attended Girls' and Boys' State. At Radford College the Girls' State Chorus, including Maribeth Brewster and Susan Smith, cut a record of patriotic songs. Robert Thomas, Dennis Tosh, and Dennis Weiss worked in the mock government at the College of William and Mary.

Sally Shinholser, playing A Mad Breakfast's maid of eccentric artist Miss Greene (Patti Anderson), serves a morning whiskey smash. Touring Burgos on his way to Madrid, Troy Lassiter visits the city's renowned cathedral.

Active in class functions, Juan Herran plays an American astronaut in the Variety Show.



Class Secretary Beth Johnston and President Dennis Weiss begin Senior Court formations. Susan Dickerson and Dennis Lynch dance to The Crystals' rendition of "Mustang Sally."

Juniors decorate for prom, "Days of Wine, Roses"

Members of the Junior and Senior Classes entered the "Days of Wine and Roses" for the spring prom. After months of planning and three hectic days of final decoration, juniors had transformed the gymnasium and lobby. Passing through trellises from a wine cellar where boys received miniature wine bottles and girls rose baskets, couples entered the large, starlit rose garden. After dancing to the music of The Crystals, they streamed into the courtyard for refreshments and relief from the heat.

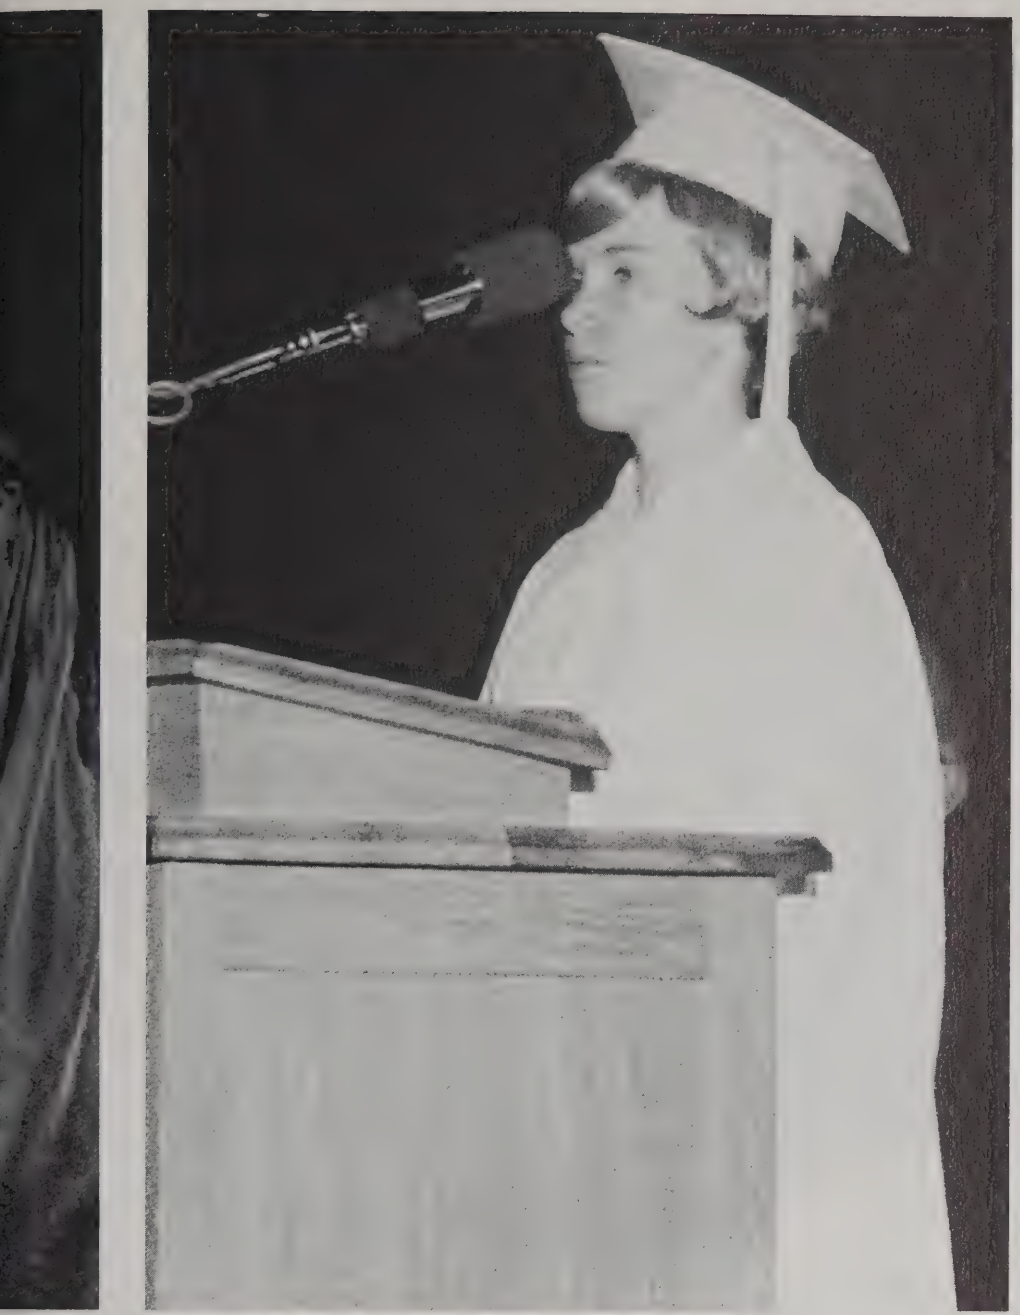
To symbolize unity and brotherhood within the Senior Class, the Court outlines a heart. Sophomore hostesses add more punch to the fountain while couples await refreshments. After hours of decorating, Barbara Hightower gazes over the garden scene with her escort Ryland Ford and Chuck Ganzert.

Mr. Doyle cautions against 'isms' threatening America's democracy

Enumerating the evils of a life void of spiritual direction in his Baccalaureate sermon, the Reverend R.T. Funderburke of Mount Vernon Baptist Church urged graduates to choose "the straight and narrow path." On Class Night, President Dennis Weiss presented a $1,000 check designated for library air conditioning to Mr. Doyle and librarian Mrs. Cook.

Henrico County Public School Superintendent Dr. W.E. Campbell advised graduates to further their education. Salutatorian Dennis Tosh called for reason to guide passion while Valedictorian Holly Nosker advised active support of democracy as a path to a good life. Anticipating the pitfalls graduates would encounter, Mr. Doyle warned against the "isms" threatening the American democratic system.

As Mr. Gilliam calls the first graduate, Carol Ajamy accepts her diploma from Mr. Doyle.



Speaking before 2,500, Dr. Campbell, Dennis Tosh, and Holly Nosker address the seniors. Dennis Weiss, class president, presented two recognition plaques to the student speakers following the two speeches.

On a Jayem second down with long yardage, Ernie Vincent snatches a high pass intended for Marshall Bolton. Mike Hastings coupled with Vincent to set up the double coverage.

With a Varina defender attempting to block the kick, Rick Jacobson boots the ball held by Tony Farry to score three points in the third quarter for the season's only field goal.

Injuries postpone scoring, defense drives in Colonial District premiere Injuries and illnesses during summer practice and early season games gave Tucker a weak start in the first year of the Colonial District. Once the team regained its disabled players, the defensive unit held opponents' scores to a thirteen point average during the last seven games. Offensively the Tigers managed only one touchdown in the first half season but mounted an average of two per game in the second despite one shutout.

Against Varina, offensive backs Charlie Crosby, Mike Hastings, and Rick Jacobson gained 205 total yards rushing. Jacobson earned twelve points in the game: a touchdown, a thirty-nine yard field goal, and three extra points. Quarterback Jay Barden scored on a pass to Ernie Vincent and an end run. Crosby and Mike Cole added another seven points.

Charlie Crosby joins Jeff Stover in throwing the Jayem quarterback for a three yard loss.

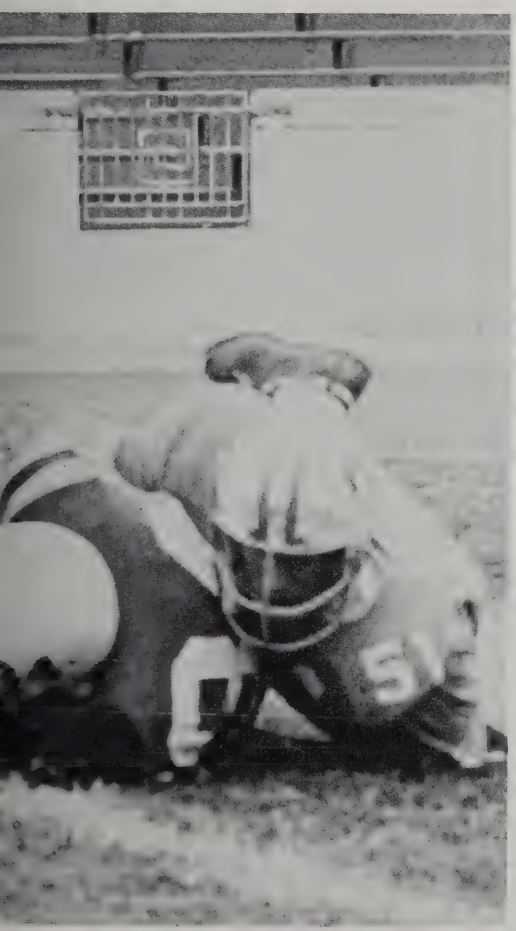
Jim Cooke tackles fullback Marshall Bolton of John Marshall, holding him to five yards.

Jim Cooke earns Lineman of Week title, two positions on All-Metro

For his performance against Benedictine, the Richmond News Leader's sports staff selected Jim Cooke as Lineman of the Week from a ballot of nominations from Richmond area coaches. The 5' 11", 175 pound center secured the title for his eight unassisted and nine assisted tackles from the linebacker position and his blocking on the offensive line.

Twenty-six coaches, each voting for twenty-two men from opposing teams, and sports writers of the News Leader picked the All-Metro team. Larry LaClair won a first string defensive end position while Jim Cooke won a linebacker spot on the first string defensive squad and the offensive center position on the second string. Ernie Vincent received honorable mention as a defensive back in the first defensive squad selection.

In morning practice Kenny Barnhill lunges at Bruce Burnette to perfect his hook block. During fourth quarter action a John Marshall halfback slows Jim Cooke as Ernie Vincent shifts to intercept fullback Dennis Coward.



John Ward runs touchdown play for eighth grade

Fullback John Ward scored the only touchdown of the season for the winless eighth grade team on a running play against Brookland. Penalties forced the team to forfeit three other touchdowns during the season.

Jimmy D'Amore and Buddy Lutton led the ninth graders in scoring and ground gaining. Beating Benedictine, Brookland, and St. Christopher's, the freshman mounted the school's best football record with three wins out of seven games and eighty-four total points.

Evading five Cadets in second quarter action, Jimmy D'Amore cuts to the sideline to grab a pass and sprint twenty-five yards to score.

Cross country squad places second in district, region on Spiders' track Beating every team in the Colonial, Capitol, and Central Districts except state champions Douglas Freeman, the harriers took second place in the regional. The University of Richmond Spiders hosted the combined district and regional meet on the 2.4 mile lake course. In what Coach Irby considered the best run of the season, veterans Donnie Rudloff and Steve Challanor captured eighth and ninth places respectively. With seventy points the Tigers finished twenty-six points ahead of the Rebels.

On the home course the squad finished third in the Tucker Invitational behind Woodberry Forest from Northern Virginia and Freeman. At Saint Christopher's and Henrico, Rudloff led the field, but an injured foot forced him to miss the Tucker Invitational and Springer meets. Against Highland Springs and Hermitage top man Challenor came in first. Andy Hardy, a ninth grade first-year runner, stayed among the seven high men during the season. The team finished thirteenth at the state meet.

Against Highland Springs in the tournament, Bruce Cook knocks down Mickey Fincher in an attempt to break up a screen. During the same game Jen Connell outjumps the entire Springer defense to score on a quick tap-in.

Ernie Vincent vaults past the outthrust arm of Ted Carter in the second of three victories over Patrick Henry. Prepared to leap for the rebound, Jen Connell waits as Rick Wagoner lunges with the Springers to vie for the ball.

Cook's twenty-five foot jump shot breaks tie to defeat Patrick Henry Finishing the season with a 7–5 league record, the Tiger cagers tied Highland Springs for second place. Ranked third in district scoring, Rick Wagoner led the team with an average of fifteen points and twelve rebounds. At the end of regular season play Wagoner also led in foul shooting by sinking ninety-nine of 114 attempted free throws.

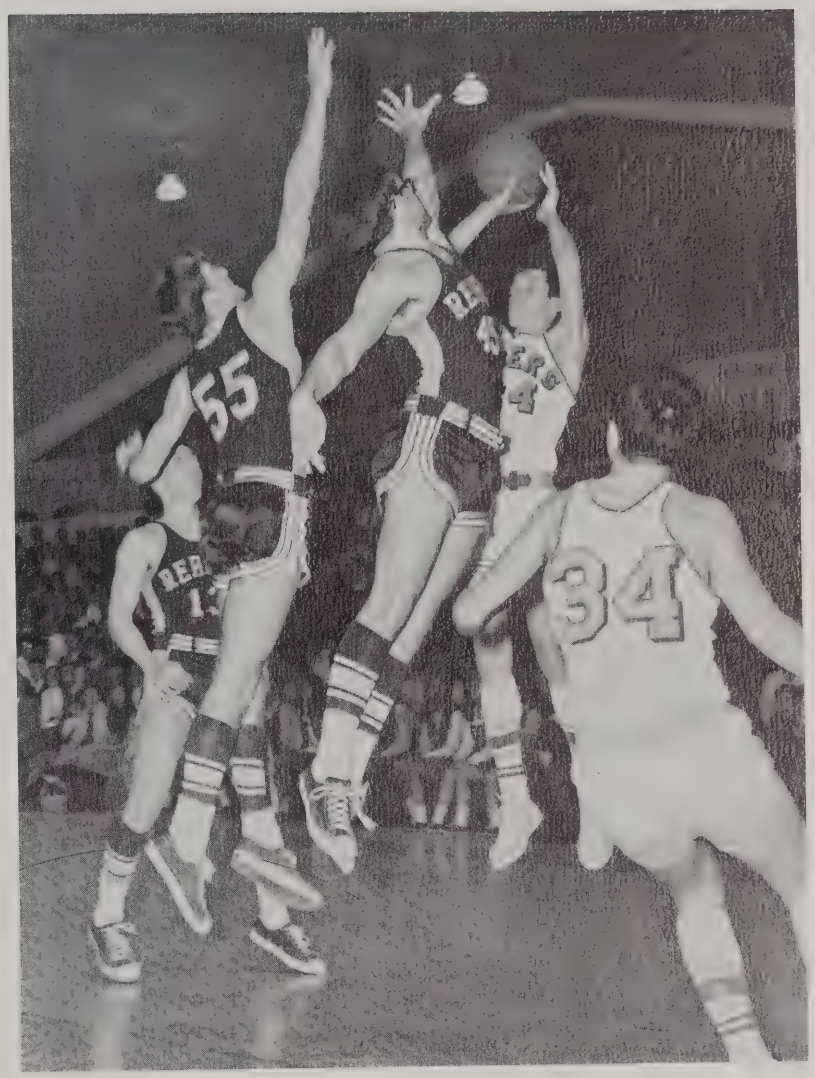
A sprained ankle kept play caller Bruce Cook out of the last matches with Benedictine and E.C. Glass, but he returned to play against Patrick Henry. With two seconds left his twenty-five foot jump shot broke a tie with the Patriots in a first round tournament game, sending Tucker to a semi-final round two point defeat by Highland Springs.

Rick Wagoner earns All-Regional team spot for shooting, rebounding

In the annual selection of the All-Metro team, two top Tucker players received recognition. Voted to the second team, Rick Wagoner compiled a regular season total of 299 points, 241 rebounds, and an eighty-seven percent foul shooting average. Chosen for honorable mention, Jen Connell scored 183 points and hauled down 147 rebounds in spite of an injury prior to the season.

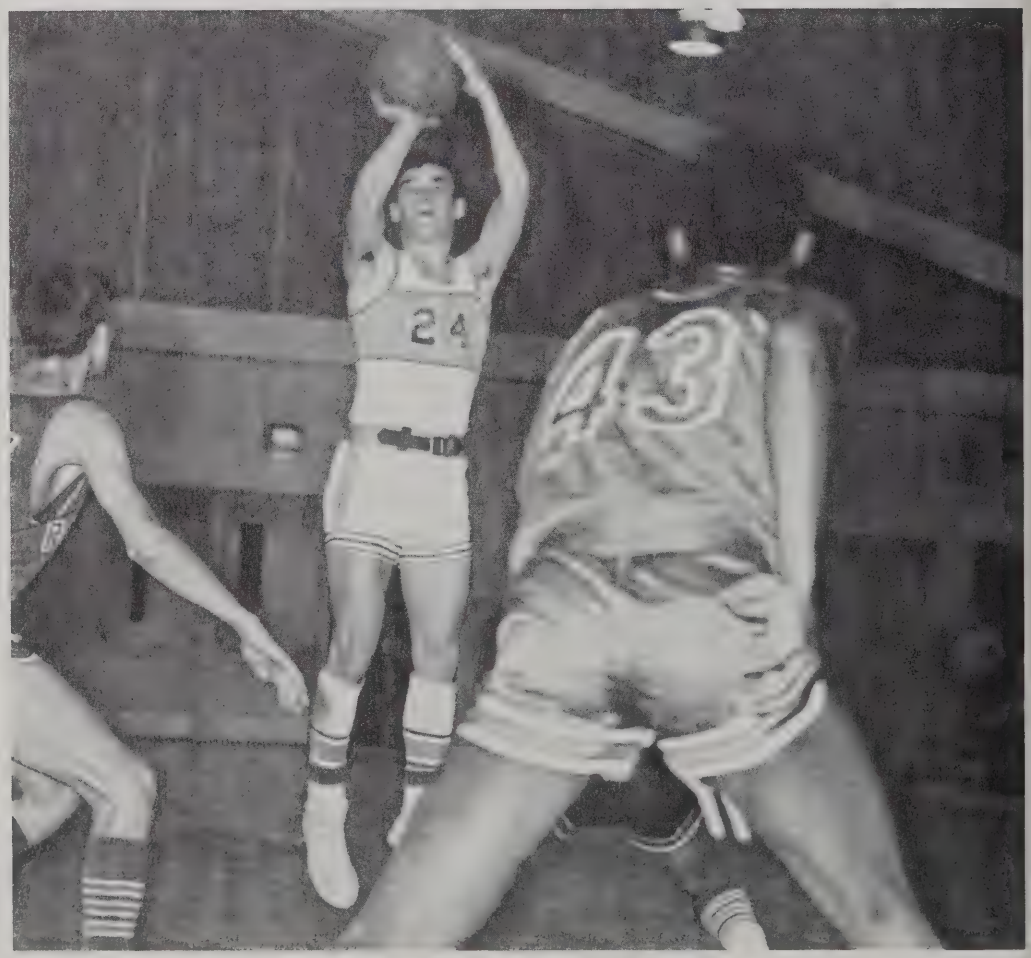
Wagoner's shooting performance also secured for him positions on the All-Colonial District team. In a combined rating of offensive and defensive skills, he earned a second team spot on the All-Regional roster. Honorable mention went to Ernie Vincent, who finished his senior year with 180 points. Vincent's ball handling and defensive capabilities led to his selection by area sportswriters.

After Bruce Cook calls for first option, Rick Wagoner drives to the foul line and releases barely out of reach of a Hermitage defender.



Bruce Cook readies to signal the play down court when Jen Connell snatches a rebound ending a third period Panther scoring drive. Despite the resistance of Freeman's Hulcher and Eubank, Pat Vines swishes a corner shot as Vince Vincent watches. On the fast break Ernie Vincent penetrates the Rebel defense to sink a ten footer and grab a six point lead.

With Rex Bias screening, Bill Frye's set shot from the home stands corner clears a rushing Patriot to tally two points in a losing effort. In the last two minutes of the second period a Rebel defensive player stuffs Sam Whiting's attempted shot to halt a Tiger scoring drive. As Patrick Henry defenders close in rapidly, Ralph Strange swishes a jump shot in the third quarter of the game.



Sam Whiting scores season total of 238 points for junior varsity squad

The junior varsity team started the season with four consecutive wins, meeting its first defeat against Freeman by one point. During the first meeting with Henrico the junior varsity team scored seventy-three percent of free throw attempts. In the game against Tidewater Academy the team had a half time score of twenty-five to eleven with only one time-out and held them to only twenty-five points. The season came to a close with an 11–7 record, the only winning basketball record for the school.

Sam Whiting held the team's high scoring position with a game high of twenty-four points against E.C. Glass of Lynchburg, bringing his season total to two hundred and thirty-four points. Rex Bias followed Whiting with a game high of twenty points against the Springers.

Tigers reach semi-finals in eighth grade tournament

The team participated in the first tournament held for the eighth grade. The coaches of the squads playing in the Westhampton Invitational Tournament selected Jack Thornton as one of the top five eighth grade players in the area. The team reached the semi-finals in the tournament only to meet defeat at the hands of Westhampton.

The ninth grade team scored a free throw high of sixty-seven percent in the first game with Varina. Ray Vassar and Jeff Hickok led the scoring for the season with a combined total of two hundred and thirty-seven points.

JV girls' squad defeats Liberty in season's sole victory

Jay Barden, Dan Lynch slam home runs; Rick Jacobson leads scoring

Behind the pitching of Ernie Vincent and Jay Barden, the varsity baseball team ended the year with a 6–8–1 record. Leading the team in batting, Rick Jacobson finished with a .326 average and won the Best Hitter award. Jacobson scored nine runs and tallied six RBI's in his fourteen hits.

Winning the Most Valuable Player award, Jay Barden equaled Jacobson's RBI's and also hit a home run. Barden's .298 batting average ranked him second on the team. Dan Lynch slammed another home run while Tommy Wren scored eight times. Ernie Vincent received the Best Defensive Player award for outstanding performance as shortstop.

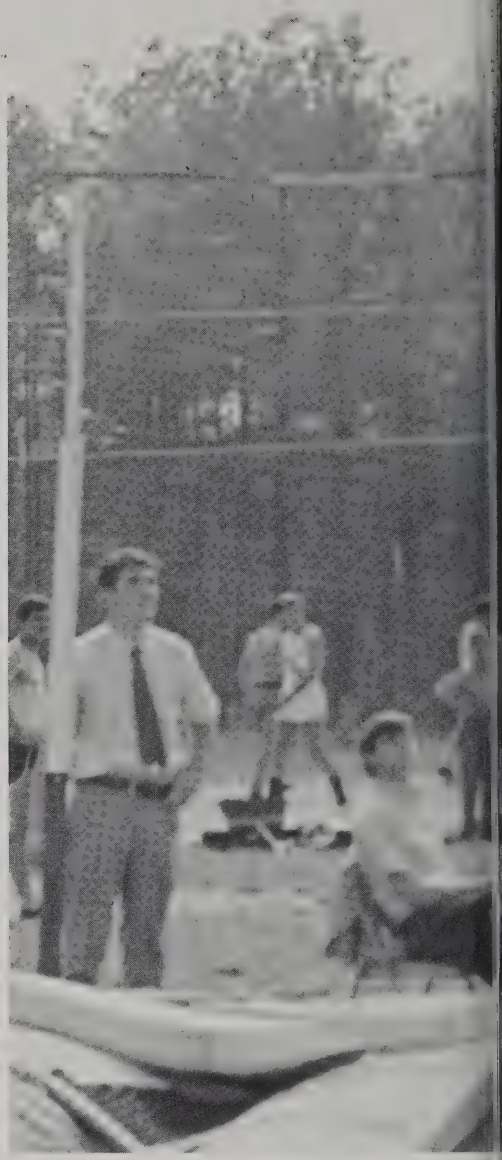
Crosby, Perkins, Connock set new records for second places in events

Outstanding performances placed three members of the varsity track second in their respective categories on the all-time records at Tucker. Putting the shot forty-nine feet six inches, Charlie Crosby took a second while Nick Crosby placed third with a put of forty-nine feet two and one-half inches.

In his first year of pole vaulting, Randy Perkins ranked all-time second with an eleven foot nine inch vault. Taking all-time fourth, junior varsity competitor Gene Taylor cleared eleven feet. Stuart Connock ranked second place at Tucker for a long jump of twenty feet seven inches and remained undefeated throughout the season in district hundred yard dash with a time of 10.4 seconds, securing Tucker's only first place in district competition.



Thrusting his feet over the bar, Gene Taylor clears ten and one-half feet in pole vaulting as George Ledford readies to catch the pole.

After the first pass of the baton from Keith Mawyer in the mile relay against the Warrior team, Buddy Waller sprints to take the lead.

During the high jump competition against the Warriors, Mike Hastings clears five feet.

Junior varsity track team shatters four school records

The junior varsity track team set four school records during its 3–3–1 season. In the 440 run Keith Mawyer broke the record with a time of 55.2 seconds, and Andy Hardy ran the mile in 4:51.9. Against Patrick Henry, Billy Raabe, Andy Hardy, Billy Melton, and Mike Jones set the mile relay record with a 3:53.5 run, while at St. Christopher's Gene Taylor pole vaulted eleven feet. Top point gainer Charlie Granger led the team in three track events.

Winning season captures second place in district

With a 9–2 record the tennis team scored its first winning season. Capturing second place in the district, the team lost only to undefeated Douglas Freeman and dealt shutouts to Varina and Henrico.

Team captain Fred Brown retained the first position for his third consecutive year and received his third letter. Second letters went to Glen Diersen, Craig Huggins, and Billy Harris. In his first year junior Ricky Perkins ranked sixth on the team for the twelve-match season.

Glen Diersen leaps high to put full power in a serve against a Henrico competitor. Diersen secured the set point with the curve.

Faculty requires overtime to win in donkey game

To raise money for the improvement of the school, the SCA sponsored Tucker's first donkey basketball game. The teachers and the students played on opposing teams with the teachers emerging as victors in overtime, 16 to 14.

The annual SCA magazine sale resulted in a $150 prize for the eighth grade, the class with the highest average sales per student. The schoolwide sales project netted $2,000 for the SCA treasury for future projects.

AFS Committee Chairman Maribeth Brewster arranged an assembly to acquaint Tucker students with the foreign exchange students from other area schools. Each exchange student discussed his country. Anna Ossenbach from Costa Rica, Rainer Hackstaette from Germany, and Manuela Farini from Italy sang "Puff the Magic Dragon."

Secretary Melodie Emery throws a short pass to Ken Lewis during the SCA donkey game. Council workers Amy Baldwin, Janet Cooke, Jenny Stover, and Susan Smith sort pages of a new student handbook during the summer. Society arranges rostrum, ushers graduation night

Following the election of officers by the newly tapped National Honor Society members, the society began their first project of ushering at the 1969 graduation. They arranged chairs in the gym for the possibility of an indoor graduation and set up flowers and banners.

In November five members traveled to the College of William and Mary for the National Honor Society Conference of the Southeastern District. College professors inspired talks on subjects ranging from "God, Man, and Society" to "What Has Science Done to Man?"

Society inducts eleven journalists, sponsors picnic for staff members

The Quill & Scroll tapped eleven journalists for membership in an April ceremony. Selection of the students depended upon their scholastic rank in class, the quality of their work in journalism, and the recommendation of the publication sponsor. Seniors Mark Estes, Ann Itzkowitz, Holly Nosker, Ken Odell, and Judy Silver, and juniors Kent Bailey, Debbi Blankenship, G. W. Habel, Marcie Shinholser, David Singer, and Mary Williams received membership for superior work on the Gavel, Hearing and Witness. In May the society sponsored a picnic for the staffs.

Bald Soprano by Ionesco competes in one act festival

For the Colonial District One Act Play Festival at Lee-Davis High School, Troupe 139 of the International Thespian Society presented The Bald Soprano. Written by Eugene Ionesco, the play received an excellent rating from Raymond Hodges of VCU's drama department.

The troupe offered the Ionesco play along with Edwin Peoples' Fantasy on an Empty Stage and J. M. Gray's The Mad Breakfast in A Night of One Acts. With the inclusion of actors and crew not in the troupe, the presentation provided an opportunity to prepare talent for future musical productions planned by the vocal music and drama departments.

Three athletes represent Tucker at FCA Summer Conference in June

During the summer of 1969, the Fellowship of Christain Athletes sent Bob Lauranzon, Bill Attkisson, and Garland Isaacs to the FCA Conference in Pennsylvania, where professionals gave pointers to the boys in football, basketball, and baseball. To again enable the club to send boys to the conference, members sponsored a game against the Tucker faculty in March.

Before school on two occasions, the membership held devotional breakfasts in Cafeteria II. The FCA also attended services at Bonnie Brae Christian Church and the Church of the Holy Comforter.

During a Friday homeroom period the FCA plans the upcoming faculty basketball game.

Jaycee's 'Little 500' bike race attracts Hi-Y members

As a joint project with the Key Club, the Hi-Y helped in the patrolling and clean-up of school rest rooms. During the spring, a speaker discussed the dangers of LSD, heroin, speed, cocain, and other narcotics with the club. Newly elected State Senator Douglass Wilder spoke to the club in May on citizenship in the community. A balloon throw provided funds for projects. The Hi-Y participated with service clubs in six area high schools in the Richmond Jaycees' "Little 500" bicycle race, held at the Collegiate Schools in April.

Junior Key Club pays monthly visits to nursing home

The Junior Key Club's campaign to remove glass from the parking lot diminished the danger of flat tires. As a service project to the seventh grade, members cleaned desks, windows, and blackboards. To acquaint students with safe driving, the club showed the movie "Death Driver," depicting traffic fatalities, during study halls.

Elderly residents at the Westport Manor Nursing Home received visits from members during the winter months. Tucker's Junior Key Club organized a committee to work in forming similar clubs at other schools.

Key Club covers school district in dystrophy drive

Continuing a project for the Richmond community, the Key Club entertained the residents of the Richmond Home for Ladies. The club supported the Muscular Dystrophy Association, the Henrico County Christmas Mother Fund, and UNICEF.

Members sold periscopes at Kiwanis golf exhibitions featuring Doug Saunders and Arnold Palmer. Other fund raising projects included the Key Club–Hi-Y basketball game, two car washes, and a Halloween candy sale. The funds provided the support of a Formosan orphan.

Members visited area Episcopal, Brethren, Catholic, Methodist, and Jewish services. A leadership conference for the officers of the school's clubs provided discussion of projects.

Y-Teens sponsors Negro children from Woodville Elementary School

For a year-long project Y-Teens Δ I members entertained Negro kindergarten children from Woodville Elementary School in Church Hill. The members hosted a Christmas party at the YWCA for the children. Sweetheart Charlie Willis dressed up as Saint Nicholas, and each child sat on his knee to tell Santa what he wanted for Christmas. After the refreshments the girls took them downtown to see the city department stores' decorations.

Carrying the children to Maymont Park in a school bus, the Y-Teens showed them the animals and helped them fly kites in the March wind.

Triangle II organizes sock hop, raises $95 for projects

At Thanksgiving Y-Teens Δ II collected canned goods from the members to present to a needy family. In December the club traveled to Westport Manor Nursing Home to sing Christmas carols for the patients.

A sock hop following the Tucker–Freeman basketball game in January earned $95 for the triangle's service projects. The girls took the admission money, baked and sold refreshments, and secured the Soul Fire band for the Friday night event.

Band employs Casavant technique of formations for festivals, parades

To finance travel expenses, the band planned fund raising projects. A carnival featuring a water balloon throw, a car bash, and a dart throwing contest operated while a rumage sale in the auditorium offered donated clothes, appliances, and toys for sale. Selling the all-purpose detergent Rex Cleaner and sponsoring the Mass Band Fussion produced capital to purchase a grand marimba.

The marching band participated in the Tuckahoe Rescue Squad Parade, where they placed first in marching appearance, the Tobacco Festival, and the Petersburg and Thalhimers Christmas Parades. Band members performed for the Randolph-Macon College Homecoming and a University of Virginia game. In the field of competition, the band took part in the Cherry Blossom Parade in Washington, D.C. At Winchester, members attended a similar celebration, the Apple Blossom Parade. Morning practices conditioned the band for the Mid-Atlantic Band Festival, where they performed in a half time show.

Majorettes win first place in dance twirl division of Crozet competition

During the last weeks of August and in the early morning hours in the fall, the Majorettes and Pom Pom Girls practiced routines for half time shows at upcoming football games. In the spring the two groups performed in Winchester's Apple Blossom Festival and in Washington's Cherry Blossom Parade. Members worked in cooperation with the band in sponsoring a backyard sale and the Mass Band Fusion, a battle of the bands held in April.

Participating in competition in Crozet and Lynchburg, the Majorettes won a first place trophy in the dance twirl division. The Pom Pom Girls performed half time shows at the University of Virginia and at Randolph-Macon College, where the show included the Casavant drill technique. The squads also presented routines in football and basketball pep rallies to music provided by the Pep Band.

WWBT spotlights cheers by varsity squad in Fall Fashion Show telecast

Beginning the season with summer practices two nights a week, the Varsity Cheerleaders created new formations for cheers and fight songs. The squad gave moral support to the High School Bowl's competition in addition to football and basketball games. The girls also yelled at track meets and baseball games in the spring months.

Selling baked goods helped the squad raise funds for paper and paints to create colorful posters carried around school, at the pep rallies, and at football games, and displayed in the gym. Attending the Azalea Mall back-to-school fashion show, the squad performed cheers on Channel 12, WWBT.

Club members competed for positions on the chess team in the Club Championship Tournament. Leading the ten match competition, Jim Addison, Keith Fogg, Ron Shifflett, Steve Shapiro, Bill Smith, and Bill Truslow earned positions on the club's team by winning at least seven of ten tournament games.

The club set up matches with chess teams from area high schools. The Tucker team triumphed over Hermitage, Henrico, Thomas Jefferson, Manchester, John Marshall, and Lee-Davis players.

DECA members vie for awards in sales judging, general business skills

With the granting of state and national charters, Mr. Crescenzo organized the Tucker chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America. Members traveled to a fall rally at Highland Springs High School to discuss chapter projects. Attending the District XIX Leadership Conference at the Virginia Inn, students competed for awards in salesmanship, advertising, ad layouts, window displays, job interviews, and sales judging. Linda Young took first place in advertising, and Debbie Stratton won third prize in sales judging. Three DECA members represented the chapter at the state leadership conference at the Hotel John Marshall.

Alumna Joannie Wade interprets symbolic dance

Speakers visiting Drama Club meetings explained fields of the dramatic arts. Tom Quimby, drama director at Virginia Commonwealth University, discussed acting and directing. Under Mr. Quinby's direction, Richard Layne improvised an insane man, and Debbie Mollen portrayed a starlet receiving her first Oscar. Choreographer Joannie Wade presented a lecture-demonstration on the art of symbolic motions in stage dancing. After urging members to mimic detectives or beauty contest winners, Miss Wade personified the characters' identifying walks and facial expressions.

Supervised by choreographer Joannie Wade, Peggy Pitt tries to mimic a detective's walk.

Freeman exchange student outlines French national educational system

Two students spoke to the French Club about life in France. Jorge Benitey, who lived in Belgium for five years, compared life here and abroad. Jorge discussed Paris, one of his favorite places, and complained about inflation in the rising prices of bubble gum and other favorite foods in France. Hervé LeMoigne, AFS student from Douglas Freeman, spoke about French students and the stricter and more formal educational system of the country.

Speaking to French Club members, Hervé LeMoigne states that in France the educational plan encourages concentrated study.

April FHA Week includes visits to Technical Center, clothing factory

The Future Homemakers of America planned monthly meetings around the theme, "Decisions That Count." The girls learned of possible career occupations with films, field trips, and guest speakers.

The girls celebrated FHA Week in early April. Related activities during the week included tours of the Richmond Technical Center and a clothing factory. The girls planned original family projects and frequent outings. Brightening the school with flowers, the members decorated the teachers' lounge and the office. The FHA float won first place in the Homecoming competition with the theme, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner."

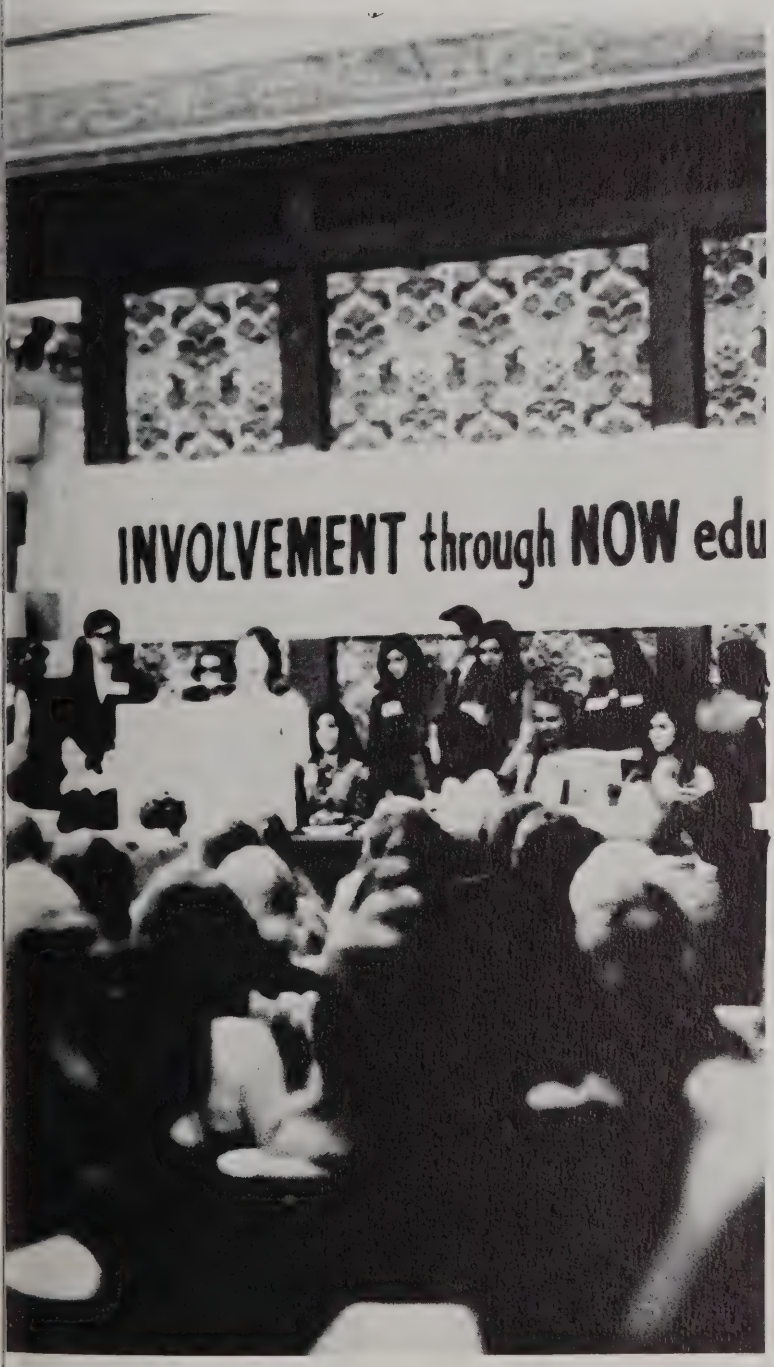
FTA tutors plan skipwith school teaching service

Attending the State VEA Convention, five FTA representatives gathered ideas for club projects and trips. Assistant Principal Joe Durham from Skipwith School and two Skipwith teachers explained the fundamentals of instructing elementary students in preparation for the FTA's tutoring program at Skipwith during second semester.



Mrs. Dodson and Mr. Durham from Skipwith explain the approaches to successful tutoring. Listening to state FTA nominees for office, four Tucker delegates sit in the Roof Garden at Richmond's Hotel John Marshall.

German Club's Christmas singers tour subdivisions

Over the Christmas holidays the German Club traveled through the Westgate and Skipwith Farms subdivisions singing traditional carole including "Stille Nacht" and "O Tannenbaum." Following an old German custom, the club formed a candlelight procession for the caroling.

The club sponsored an Easter egg hunt on campus, with clues written in German on chocolate eggs hidden around the school. The winner found a candy Easter bunny in the refrigerator in the teachers' workroom.

Historians visit pre-Civil War structures in Henrico

Tracing the development of the Henrico area, History Club members toured the historical landmarks of the county. Following maps obtained from the county social studies department, the club plotted its route to include the DuVal house, the Cottrell Plantation, and Wincello Tavern. Trips to the Gayton Coal Mines, once a main industry of the county, acquainted the historians with a knowledge of local industry at the turn of the century. They also found the ties of an abandoned railroad bed, at one time a main transportation line.

Latin Club holds 'Cenam Curiae,' Roman banquet

At the Junior Classical League Convention at the University of Virginia, Ann Itzkowitz presented the newly revised constitution to delegates from high schools throughout Virginia. Attendants discussed plans for a two day convention for 1971 at Natural Bridge to allow more time for exchange of ideas and to permit a dance and a banquet. The league elected new officers and held seminar sessions on Roman civilization.

Teachers from area schools attended the Curia's Roman banquet. The guests, portraying famous Greeks and Romans, had the opportunity to buy auctioned slaves, first year Latin students. A contest for the best representation of true Roman clothes, a gladiatorial fight and a chariot race on tricycles completed the agenda.

Ira Ruby, auctioneer at the Roman banquet, sells Charlie Crosby to a wealthy guest while Germanic captives await the bidding block.

Radio operators obtain licenses for FM broadcasting

In anticipation of operating a limited broadcasting FM station, members of the Radio-Electronics Club obtained their third-class radiotelephone license. An examination of electronics knowledge given by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. prepared the applicants for operating the FM broadcaster.

Radio station WEZS-FM donated an RCA broadband circularly polerized antenae for the construction of the facility. Members spent th school year raising money for th enterprise with a series of doughnu sales to develop the station, located i the Building 2 radio room.

Members view moon samples, laser exhibit at Smithsonian Institution

With a growing concern of the population explosion, the Science Club invited Dr. Leonard Morrow of Randolph-Macon College to speak on "Famine 1975—Fact or Fiction." His views on a possible food shortage in the near future informed members of the threat of an uncontrolled population increase.

Four representatives from the club visited the new facilities of the Math-Science Center and heard Dr. W. P. Trawer's explanation of the center's study programs. In the spring the members toured the Smithsonian Institution, where they saw the moon rocks brought back from the flight of Apollo 11. Other exhibits included replicas of the Mercury and Gemini space capsules, Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," a laser display, and models of guided missiles.

Richmond TB Association hosts Gavel staff at annual convention

Switching to offset printing, the Gavel staff used t-squares in preparing the pages for the printer. Offset allowed more pictures for the paper.

The staff published a special two-page free edition issued in September for the entire student body. In the publications' assembly the newspaper presented a skit tracing Tucker's history. The staff sponsored the first sock hop of the year following the September Lane football game.

The staff conducted noncredit journalism lessons during study halls for the benefit of members who had not previously taken the course. Twenty-two staff members attended a program held by the Richmond Tuberculosis Association, including a tour of Richmond Newspapers.

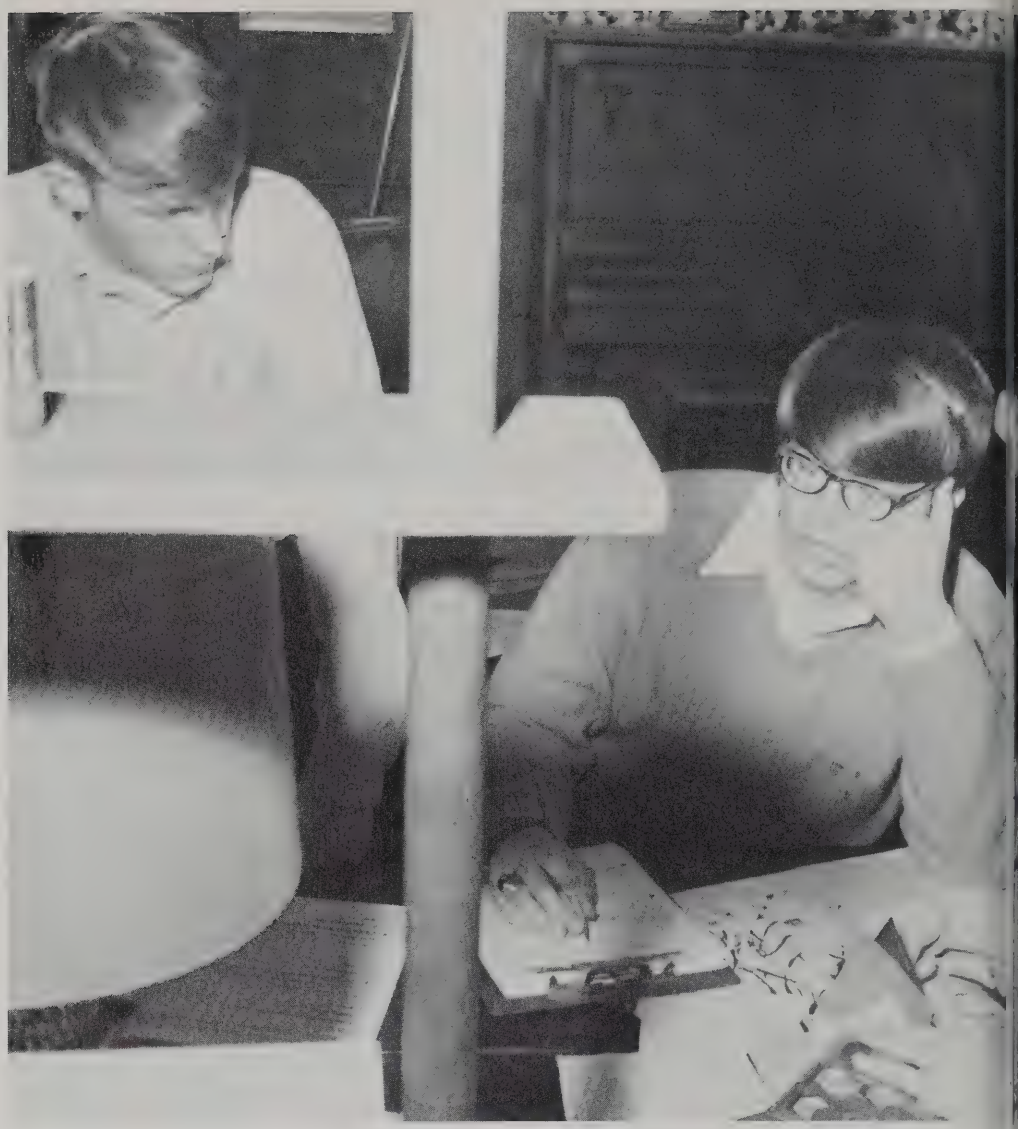
Hearing stresses free verse, creativity, poetic message

The Hearing staff spent study hall periods discussing works submitted by student authors. Collecting poems, essays, and short stories, staff members judged the creations according to grade level and literary quality. The art staff worked to convey the copy's meaning through illustrated interpretations.

During the year the Hearing emphasized creativity and originality in the field of free verse and stressed subjects with poetic messages of current philosophical trends.

A club and student patron page in the biannual publication and several bake sales helped meet printing costs.

Making final changes and criticisms, Hearing editorial staff members Debbi Blankenship, Kent Bailey, Deborah Dalton, Diane Bates, Mrs. Venturino, and David Singer prepare to deliver the winter material to the publisher.



Witness adds eighth graders to staf to strengthen underclass coverage

In August selected Witness members journeyed to Winston-Salem, North Carolina, to learn the Hunter Publishing Company system of yearbook publication. The two-day trip involved a tour of the plant and a luncheon with the organization's president and vice-president.

To assure more experienced editorial leaders for future books, th Witness added eighth graders to th staff for the first time.

Dance with music of Wild Sounds Unlimited closes week of activities

The activities of Senior Week began with a reception for juniors in the Senior Lounge on Monday. The class council sponsored a breakfast for the seniors on Wednesday and presented Finian's Rainbow in the auditorium that evening. In contrast to the gaudy attire of Mismatch Day, the class observed Dress-up Day on Friday. A dance featuring the music of Wild Sounds Unlimited climaxed the week on Saturday.

Profits of $1865 from the Variety Show and the sale of Kadet stationery provided money for the class gift. Seniors voted to donate money along with the SCA to the Astrop Memorial Fund. The class designated the gift to finance air conditioning for the school library.

Silk screen posters herald showing of mystery thriller "Wait Until Dark"

As a result of the vote of class members, juniors sponsored the showing of the suspense filled motion picture, "Wait Until Dark," starring Audrey Hepburn. Silk-screened posters and public address announcement skits written and performed by Joel Rubin and George Habel advertised the presentation. Proceeds from the movie, the sale of light bulbs, and the sponsoring of the Sadie Hawkins dance financed the spring prom.

Andy Lassiter, a mounted cannon, and SCA Secretary Melodie Emery enter the stadium.

Faculty chooses twelve students to attend Math-Science Center classes

Math and science teachers selected students to attend the Explorer program at the Math-Science Center. Twelve eighth graders enrolled in the classes in chemistry and photography at John Marshall High School.

Dressing as Highland Springers, the eighth grade informed seventh graders of the sportsmanship code with an auditorium pep rally skit.

Principal Doyle evaluates Yeates High Curriculum

Mr. Doyle served as a member of an evaluation committee for John Yeates High School in Nansemond County. He observed administration, faculty, range of subjects, and extra-curricular activities before meeting with other members to prepare a comprehensive report for the State Board of Education.

Mr. Morris sold literature texts through English teachers for the first time. Supervisor of school buses, he scheduled field trips by English students to PAVE performances. Serving as stage manager for the musical, Mr. Caldwell assisted with the construction and moving of sets. He handled permanent afternoon dismissals as overcrowding allowed juniors and seniors with sixth and seventh period study halls to leave school early. Facing problems of a large enrollment, Mr. Neale planned three presentations of each assembly in the auditorium.

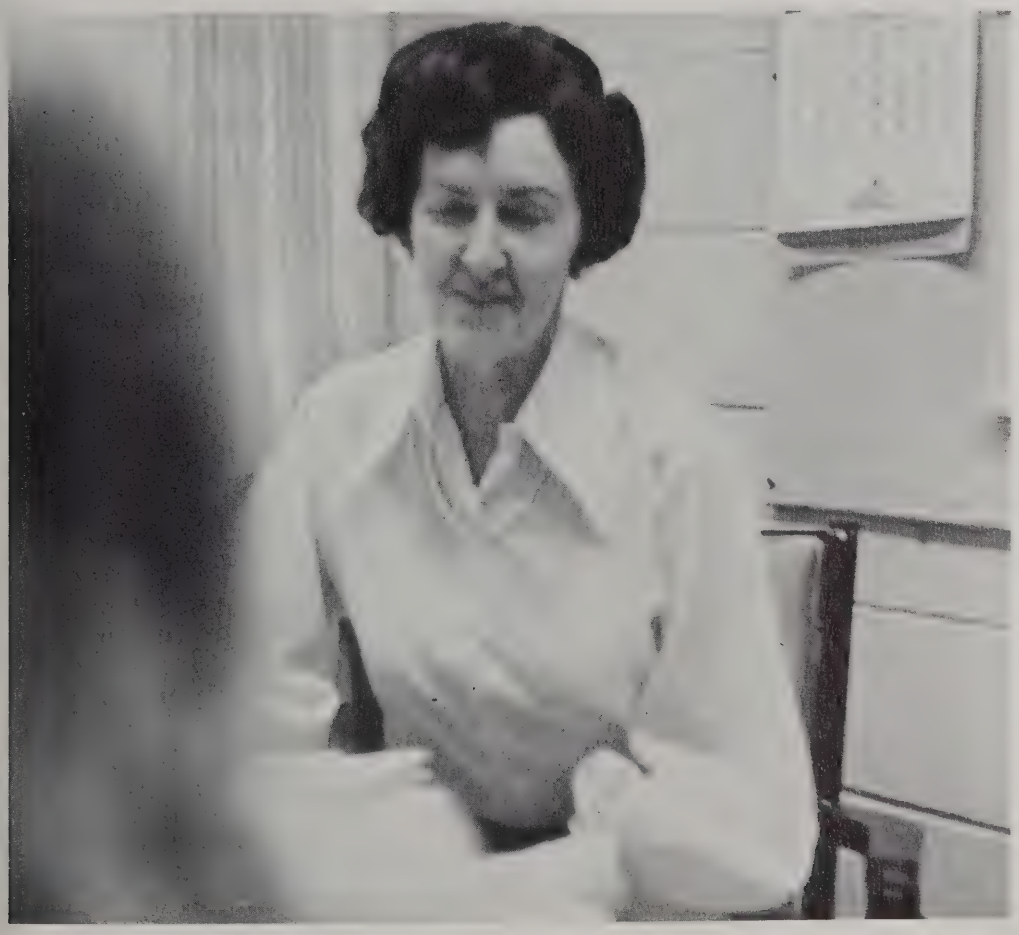
Computer plans students' 1970-71 schedules through guidance office

Tucker students applied a computerized system to schedule their 1970-71 classes through the Henrico County public school system. The counselors issued questionnaires and schedule sheets to assign individual identification numbers. The computer, located at the school board office in Highland Springs, processed the students' schedules and eliminated the time-consuming task of juggling class conflicts. School officials programed six sheets of information on each pupil to find a base for scheduling according to individual needs. All Henrico County schools coverted to the computerized system. The new method forced an early time for completing pink sheets and for selections of publications staffs and cheerleaders.



Mrs. Hallbleib and Karen Robbins decide on classes for programing in a Henrico County computer utilized in coordinating schedules.

'Block course' establishes stronger relationship among teachers, pupils

Stenography I, a two hour block course, gave students an opportunity to develop specialized talents in shorthand transcription, typewriting, filing, record keeping, and office machines. The block course enriched teacher-pupil relations with more time to work on individual weaknesses.

Classes toured business offices throughout the city. Secretarial students visited Reynolds Metals executive offices and the steno pool of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. General business students took advantage of the Legal Secretarial Association's invitation to see law in action. They journeyed through the city jail, the juvenile and domestic court, the law and equity court, and the Clerk of Court's office.

Department gives expanded course in art, literature for juniors, seniors

Providing a challenge to the college-bound student, the English department developed last year's world literature course into a study of the humanities. To introduce the course, Mr. Robert Hildrup of the Richmond schools explained, "Why Literature?" and Reverend Gene Petty showed slides of his trip to England, France, and Switzerland. For each country studied, Mr. Bosher taught philosophy, Mr. Ford discussed the theater, and Mrs. Venturino introduced the nation's art. Miss Bowles and Miss Jester spoke on the theater of the absurd and existentialism. A linguistics expert, Dr. Al Dawson from the University of Richmond discussed the influence of the Spanish language on world literature. Students received grades based on oral evaluations of their knowledge of the material covered during the six weeks rather than on conventional tests.

Taking advantage of the proximity of the University of Virginia, Mr. Bosher attended weekly classes during the fall and spring semesters to fill requirements for his doctorate in counselor education. Mr. Kitsteiner worked toward his Master of Arts in English at Virginia Commonwealth University.

Teachers host county workshop on college languages

While students enjoyed a day of rest after first semester exams, the foreign language teachers served as hostesses for their counterparts from other Henrico County high schools at a workshop held at Tucker. To assure the smooth transition from a language course in a secondary school to its study in college, the teachers invited the opinions of professors from the College of William and Mary and the University of Richmond. The high school teachers first explained their courses of study and methods of presentation. College representatives then discussed the materials and techniques used in higher education, and an informal question and answer period provided an opportunity to exchange ideas to ease the students' transition.

Making fun of the Boy Scouts, Miss Bowles' French IV students present a farce, a play form typical of literature during the Middle Ages, for Mrs. Neagle's second period class.

Accelerated math course prepares students for algebra

An accelerated math course offered eighth graders a chance to prepare for the study of algebra and geometry. The class received basic mathematical material designed to introduce them to problems of first year algebra.

At the Mathematics and Science Center, Mr. Dessenberger taught a select group of seventh and eighth grade students. Mathematical tools, skills, and games constituted the Saturday morning program, which included speakers and field trips to the Smithsonian Institute and to Moorehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill.

Making use of the overhead projector, Mrs. Rubin illustrates the Pythagorean Theorem. After Mrs. Stitcher's resignation, Mrs. Gough takes over her second semester math classes.

Girls reduce in corrective physical education program

Peddling the new exercise bike, jogging the track, and performing special calistenics, the girls' physical education classes participated in the corrective physical education, an exercise and reducing program. Activities of those not in the corrective program consisted of golf, tennis, and fencing. Volunteer medical secretaries managed individual health records indicating reasons for student absences. Prospective employers could review the records to obtain information on the person's health background. The teachers paralleled physical fitness scores to rank Tucker girls with girls from other county schools.

The boys' physical education program acquired new pieces of equipment. In their schedule, the boys played cage ball, crab soccer, and shuffleboard on the court in the main gym. Coaches taught wrestling, basketball, volleyball, and gymnastics.

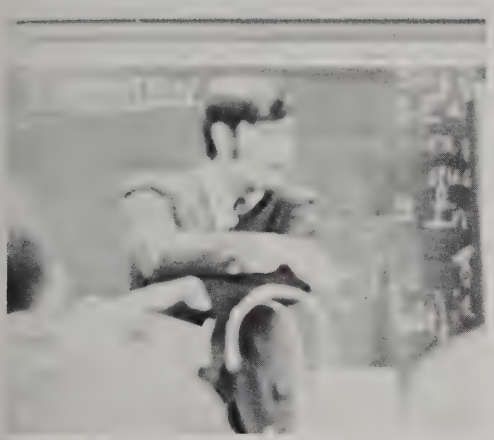
Mobil Chemical Research donates science equipment



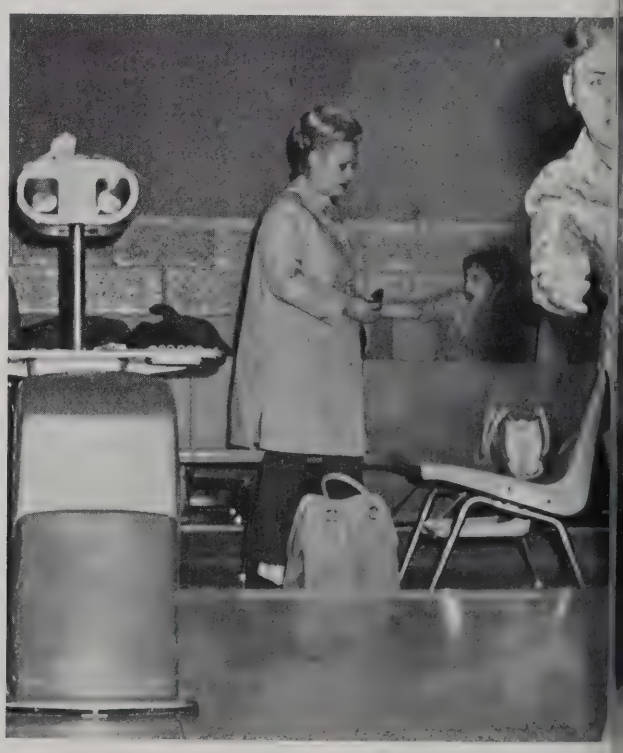
The Chemical Research Department of Mobil Chemical Company presented eight thousand dollars worth of pH meters, analytical balances, and centrifuges to the science department. Supplimenting physics teaching aids, the county contributed a laser to the department's supply of instruments.

Seniors volunteered to demonstrate experiments for Miss Barbara Roberts' sixth grade class at Skipwith School in February. The eleven students in the advanced biology class explained principles of electricity and magnetism and answered students' questions.

In Earth Science 8, Mr. Robertson lectures on various formations of sedimentary rocks. During the Parent-Teacher Conference, Mrs. Purdum explains the science projects due in future months for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Riley.

Trafalgar Square proves an exciting starting point for Anne Vaden as she begins her European summer vacation in Great Britain.

Routine exercising of the horses and private riding lessons occupy Mrs. O'Bier's free time. Sunday Sociables, a mixed bowling league, provides Mrs. Pelfrey with weekly exercise.



Improved grouping system divides individuals by subject competence

Seventh grade students experienced changes in the grouping system which placed them among classmates with similar achievement levels in the various subjects. The grouping of the past years contained students with the same classes for each period. Individually grouped subjects attended by students from several different homerooms replaced the grouped homeroom system and introduced the youngest class to the arrangement of the other grades in the school. Seventh grade English teachers also met with the English department to correlate the curriculum and provide smooth transition for students from one year to the next.

Summer vacations took Joan Faulkner and Anne Vaden to the European continent for an exciting summer of foreign dishes, sightseeing tours, and new acquaintances. Miss Faulkner traveled in a twenty-one day tour group that visited the capital cities. Accompanied by three teachers from other Richmond schools, Miss Vaden trouped through Western Europe on a three-month excursion. English and history classes benefited from discussions of their travels in literature and geography studies.

Seventh Grade. Front row: Chairman Mrs. Elsie Pelfrey, Reading. Anne Vaden, History, Spelling, Pep Club, Seventh and Eighth Grade Cheerleaders, Seventh Grade Sponsor. Students evaluate fairness of tests, overall effectiveness of instructor

Using the European method of student evaluation of teachers, the social studies department allowed each student to rate his instructor. A questionnaire provided for an excellent, good, fair, or poor rating on knowledge of the subject, preparation, presentation, fairness, and overall ability. Scales permitted the evaluation of tests and homework assignments with respect to difficulty and length.

Promoting recognition of the advantages of democracy in the United States, the department sponsored an essay contest on the subject, "What's Right with America?" A panel of students and teachers judged the papers on the basis of originality of ideas. Ronnie Robinson received a one hundred dollar prize for his essay.

Social Studies. Front row: Chairman Mrs. Susan Jones, Government, Beta Club. Jane Jackson, World History-Geography I,II. Mrs. Judy Kahn, World History-Geography I. Joining a restless study hall in skipping rope, Mr. Carter exhibits a playful personality by jumping a hundred times without stopping. Faye Ehrenstamm and Mr. Johnston prepare a graph of the results of a survey conducted to find the meaning in a marriage ceremony.

Art supervisor Randolph Cheatham demonstrates water color technique

The art department wove a five by three foot Tucker banner on a movable frame to create a three dimensional effect on the tapestry. The banner represented the school in the entrance hall of the Richmond Arena during the Festival of Arts and Technology. The projects of art students varied from metal etchings to rug weaving. W. Randolph Cheatham, the Henrico County art supervisor, demonstrated the different applications and uses of water colors to the first year art students. Melinda Motley, an art major at Longwood College, assisted as a student teacher.

To plan steps reaching the counter of the bar for the dancers in the musical, Mrs. Stratton and Mrs. Greenwell confer with Mike Fisher.

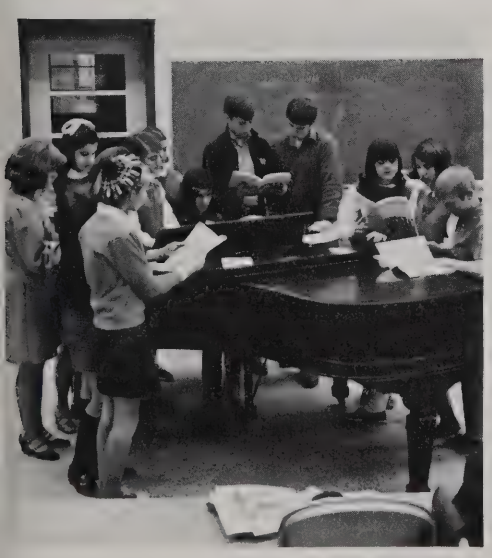
Seventh graders explore elements of music theory

Mrs. Hutchin's general music class dealt with the fundamentals of written and vocal music to prepare students for performing groups. The study of music history gave a background for understanding the composers' motivation and interpretation of musical trends, including the difficult rhythms and dissonant chords of modern styles.

Displaying a new drill style, the Casavant, the marching band emphasized individual placement instead of the conventional squad movements.

During a fall pep rally, Mr. Thier directs the pep band to follow the dynamics as marked while leading students in the "Fight Song."



Music. Richard Thier, Junior Varsity Band, Concert Band, Marching Band. Mrs. Rebecca Hutchins, Seventh Grade Chorus, Eighth Grade Chorus, Seventh Grade General Music. Robert Stamback, Concert Choral Group, Music Appreciation, Music Theory I,II, Ninth Grade Chorus, Novettes.

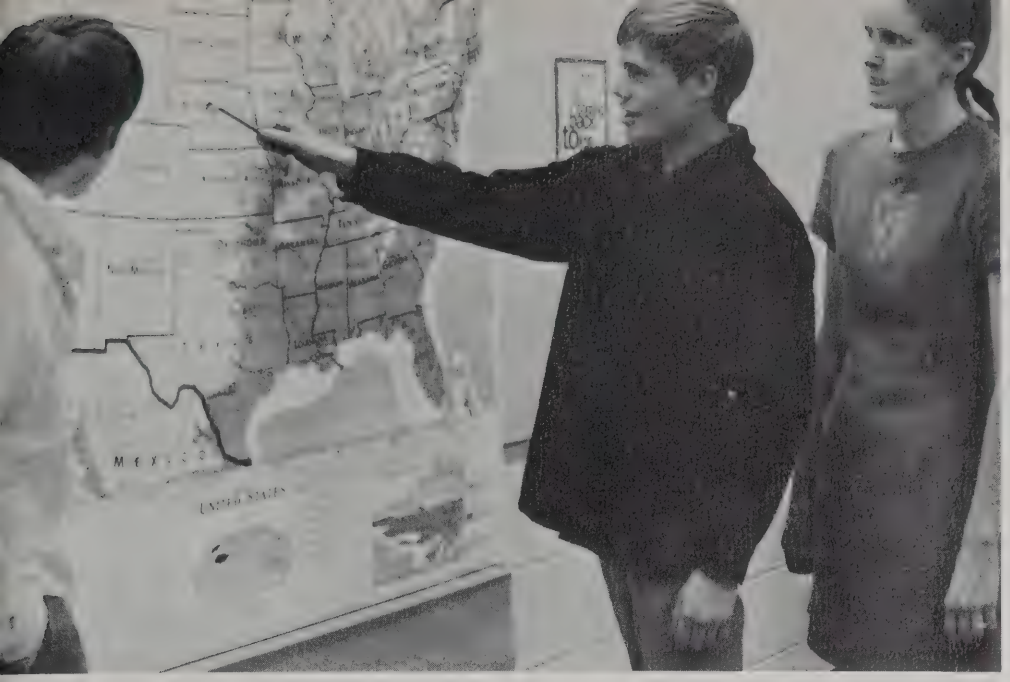
Mrs. Hutchins accompanies madrigal singers as they rehearse "The Cricket" and "Musical Concoction" for the Chorus spring concert.

Senior home economic girls serve luncheon for county school heads

Home economic girls in third and fourth year classes along with the senior home economic class chose to learn the needlework craft of crocheting. Popular articles crocheted included colorful berets and scarves. Later interested girls advanced to the creation of vests, skirts, and suits. Mrs. Smith supplied the necessary needles and instructions, and the students provided their own wool and the particular pattern of the article which they wished to create.

Members of the senior home economic class prepared a luncheon for eight principals of Henrico's junior and senior high schools and five county supervisors. After an appetizer of aspic salad, the girls served roast beef and stuffed potatoes. During a meeting following the luncheon, the girls served coffee and mints.

Mrs. Perkins demonstrates how the dove tails strengthen the corner for a well-built drawer. Diane Leake learns the proper way to hold a crochet needle with Mrs. Smith's assistance.



Grooming skills, electives provide job preparation

Students in the special education program received training for future vocations. English, math, science, history, and typing constituted the regular day subject material. Electives including home economics, shop, typing, and art added vocational preparation to the students' schedules. With the regular curriculum, areas of study involving grooming and personality development helped build character traits.

One of the special education classes, taught by Mrs. Torstrick, consisted of mentally retarded students. Miss Hickman assisted the emotionally disturbed students in areas needed for adjustment to a school environment.

Donnie Wagner, Stephen Pitman, and Miss Hickman review the names of state capitals. Pam Cole and David Waller design a bulletin board of vocational study for Mrs. Torstrick.

Secretary attends group session at VAES assembly

Mrs. Menefee attended the October group session of the Virginia Association of Educational Secretaries Convention in Chester, Virginia. Mrs. Smith handled the school's finances ranging from Coke bills for club activities to equipment bought for the school. Mrs. Hayes announced daily bulletins over the public address system as well as typed memorandums and correspondence for the principals.

Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Green, and Mrs. Innes, with the help of forty volunteer student aides, managed the library and seventeen thousand books.

Behind the scenes, registered nurse Mrs. Settle, cafeteria head Mrs. Young, eight full-time and four part-time workers, and head janitor Richard Thompson with ten assistants kept the school plant operations running throughout the year.

Mrs. Settle aids Mike McCabe's foot injured when attempting an inverted seat drop. Mrs. Green, Mrs. Innes, and Mrs. Cook carry out the jobs of the librarians. Students rate the spaghetti dish as a favorite with eight hundred lunches bought on a "spaghetti day."

Decorating the tree in the office, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hayes, and Mrs. Menefee hang red and white cardboard drums trimmed with gold.

Notes

The 1970 Witness was printed by the Hunter Publishing Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Our publisher's representative is John Perry.

The paper stock is 90-pound saxony finish. Headlines are 24-point English. Body copy is 12-point Garamond Roman with 2-point leading. Captions are 10-point solid. Identifications, senior directory and index are 8-point solid.

Appreciation goes to Henry Ford, literary consultant. A special thanks from the advisors to Robert Thomas, Dennis Tosh, and Holly Nosker for outstanding service.

Tucker–
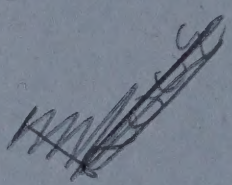
a sprawling, overcrowded collection of ages, styles, opinions– resisting the confines of the image of tradition.

To the Boy with the Branches


Poles, you may have it but your Branches Doesn't. But don't worry about what (pole) you have got in a world of problems with a Siri, it'll come to you for lessons.
